[VOL. IX.]

KENTUCKY.

An Act to amend an Act entitled an Act for the better regulating the town of Lexington.

Approved December 21, 1795.

BE it enacted, that from and after the first day of March next, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, residing within the bounds of the said town and lots of Lexington, owners of any swine, to cause the same to go at large within the said bounds; and if any swine belonging to any person within the said bounds, shall be found running or going at large within the same, it shall be lawful for any person whatsoever to kill and destroy every such swine to running at large. Provided always, that the provisions in this act contained, shall not extend to persons driving swine from one plantation to another through the said town and bounds aforesaid, or in order to sell the same.

The trustees of the said town and their successors, shall have power to appoint a clerk of the market, and to enact such bye laws and ordinances for the regulation of the said market, as they may think proper; provided they are not contrary to the laws and constitution of this commonwealth; and to affix a penalty for the breach of any of the bye laws, not exceeding the sum of ten dollars; to be recovered at the suit of the trustees aforesaid, in the like manner as fines of the like amount are now recoverable by law. Provided always, that before any bye laws or ordinances enacted by the trustees of the said town by virtue of this act, or the power before vested in them by law, shall have any operation, it shall be advertised for four weeks successively in the Kentucky Gazette and Kentucky Herald. The standard of weights and measures shall be the same as it now is by the laws of Virginia, unless altered by the laws of the United States. And if any person in the market house of the said town, shall sell or offer to sell any article by weight or measure, below the article to be sold, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the market, to seize the article to be sold, and the said clerk shall account for the amount of the sale, to the trustees, whose duty it shall be to apply the same to the repairing the streets and highways of the said town.

BE it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said trustees to employ such number of Watchmen, at such reasonable wages as shall be found necessary and proper, and that they shall have full power and authority to ascertain and prescribe the frands and rounds of the said watchmen, in and through the streets and highways of the said town, to engage them for such length of time as shall be found expedient; and in case of misbehaviour, inability or neglect, to discharge them, and appoint others in their stead: and the said watchmen respectively shall use their best endeavors to prevent fires, murders, burglaries, robberies and other outrages and disorders, within the bounds of the in and out lots of the said town. They shall visit all negro quarters and other places suspected of entertaining unlawful assemblies of slaves or other disorderly persons; and they are hereby empowered and required, to arrest and apprehend them, and all such suspicious persons, who shall be found wandering or misbehaving themselves, within the bounds aforesaid, and shall take the person or persons so apprehended, as soon as convenient, may be, before some justice of the peace, of the county of Fayette, to be examined and dealt with according to law. And in order to detract the expence of such watch, it shall and may be lawful for the trustees to raise in addition to the sum now allowed to be raised, the annual sum of fifty pounds, by a tax on the real and personal property, and realties within the bounds aforesaid.

The jurisdiction of the trustees over the streets and highways, shall extend no farther than the bounds of out lots: beyond those bounds shall be as heretofore, under the direction of the surveyors appointed by the county court; and the inhabitants of the said town, shall be compellable to work on such parts of the roads, as lie between the bounds of the out lots and the end of one mile from the end of the house.

BE it further enacted, that as far as this act concerns swine in the town of Lexington, it shall be extended to the town of Washington in Mason county.

This act shall commence and be in force from and after the passage thereof.

SELLING OFF.

Lexington, December 16.

Copy of a letter from his excellency the Governor, to the Legislature of the State of Kentucky.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives.

As I shall not in the common course of business, have another opportunity of addressing you during my continuance in office, I cannot take my final leave of you without expressing the grateful sense which I shall always retain of the favorable manner in which my administration has been judged of by my countrymen.

When I was called into office by the unexpected voice of my country, I felt a conscientious that my former walk through life, had prevented me from obtaining that kind of knowledge which is indispensibly necessary to a proper discharge of the duties of a Chief Magistrate of an independent State. But as I knew my interests were inseparable from those of my country, and as I felt the most ardent zeal for her prosperity, I determined to obey the call: trusting that my fellow citizens upon being convinced that my intentions were good, would make the proper allowances where I failed of success; the event has fully answered my expectations, and my experience has taught me to believe that a free and enlightened people will always give their approbation to the conduct of those public officers, who have in view no other object than the public good. A lesson which ought to have the most beneficial influence on the conduct of all public servants.

It is with the most heartfelt satisfaction that I contemplate the change that has taken place in the state of population and improvements within this State during the three last years, a change so great that it may with truth be asserted that a similar one has never before been experienced in any of the infant settlements of America. It is with pleasure that I acknowledge that this change is in a great degree to be attributed to the effectual protection which the executive of the general government, and the Legislature of this State, have enabled me to afford to our frontier settlements. This just and enlightened policy has had and still must ever have the strongest tendency to encrease the wealth, population, and prosperity of this State.

Possessing, as we do, the finest country in the world, and enjoying all the blessings of equal liberty, it becomes our duty to improve the soil to the utmost, and guard the soil from violation. Altho' the hand of arbitrary power at present prevents us from enjoying to the extent; we have an undoubted right to enjoy all the benefits which a benignant providence intended should belong to the proprietors of this country; we ought by every exertion in our power, to endeavor to hasten that state of population and resources, in which this country must be heard and attended to when the demands her just rights. But above all, we ought to hold it in constant remembrance, that we should be continually on the watch to guard against every encroachment on our liberty, from whatever quarter it may be attempted.

Accept gentlemen, my cordial thanks for the very polite and friendly manner in which you have expressed your approbation of my exertions to serve our common country: and be assured that it is the first wish of my heart that the way soon attain that degree of wealth, importance and happiness to which she is justly entitled.

I have the honor to be
With great respect,
Gentlemen.

Your most obedient servant.

ISAAC SHELBY.
Frankfort, Dec. 16, 1795.

To which letter the House of Representatives returned the following answer:

To the Governor of Kentucky.

SIR,

When in obedience to the call of your countrymen, you relinquished the comforts of domestic retirement to accept the appointment of Chief Magistrate, your fellow-citizens, assured that you were actuated by the sincerest wish to promote their interests, with confidence anticipated the event of your administration.

They were convinced that the same motive which induced you to accept, would stimulate you to a faithful patriotic discharge of the duties of your office.

They have not been disappointed. In union with their voice their representatives beg leave to assure you that they entertain a very high sense of your exertions in the common cause; and that health and happiness may attend you in their sincerest wish.

The Subscribers

HAVE on hand, a handsome assortment of MERCHANTISE, which they will sell on very moderate terms for cash and country produce. I hope who please to deal with them as far as six or eight pounds, shall have a considerable abatement from the common retail price.

They will also dispose of their Tan-Yard and Stock on hand, consisting of about four hundred hides and one hundred cord of Chestnut and Black Oak bark; there is a good bark-mill and a new framed currying shop 44 by 16, with 3 rooms and a commodious loft. There is also a good dwelling-house, with other necessary buildings, and 350 acres of Chestnut-oak land within 6 miles of the premises.

All those indebted to them, by bond, note or book account, are requested to make payment before the first day of March, otherwise they will be under the disagreeable necessity of putting their accounts into the hands of a proper officer for collection.
